

ABSTRACT

An occupant crush protection system for a vehicle includes an occupant protection device, such as a seatbelt retraction device, powered by a vehicle battery, a device control unit for controlling the occupant protection device, a relay circuit, a sensor for sensing high possibility of collision and a relay control circuit for bringing the relay to a power supply state only when the sensor senses high possibility of collision.